Sub: Timely and Quality Redressal of Public Grievances in CPGRAMS / EPFiGMS Portals - Reg.

Sir,

You are well aware that the public grievances in respect of all government departments are being monitored by the Hon'ble Prime Minister of India through PRAGATI meetings held every month and e-Samiksha Portal of Government of India. The PRAGATI e-Samiksha portal is also covering grievances related to EPFO. The Hon'ble Prime Minister has desired that all possible efforts should be made for speedy and quality disposal of public grievances.

2. From time to time instructions have been issued earlier for streamlining the entire process of grievance redressal and its monitoring in EPFO which are required to be meticulously followed.
3. However, it is once again advised that all the grievances received by post, telephone, email or in person etc must be registered on EPFiGMS on the same day of their receipt in the respective office.
4. Each office has to closely monitor that not only the grievances are registered on the same day but also to ensure that they are resolved at the earliest and reply is updated on the portal after resolution of each grievance.
5. Please note that it is the responsibility of the concerned OIC to ensure that all grievances are timely disposed. The quality of reply furnished in respect of each grievance is also to be evaluated before uploading on the EPFiGMS/CPGRAMS portal within one day of receipt of reply. All OICs should dedicatedly monitor the quality of disposal of grievance and evaluate the same before uploading the same on the concerned portal so that a relevant and comprehensive reply is made available to the member/complainant.

6. In case final reply is not possible, then an interim reply must be uploaded and efforts shall continue to ensure expeditious final disposal to completely resolve the grievance to the satisfaction of the concerned member/complainant.

7. It has been observed that consistency of reply to the grievance is often changed during the course of redressal and a new direction to the issue is brought forward. This should be avoided. It gives an impression that the grievances are not carefully perused leading to furnishing of inconsistent status and reply.

8. Besides uploading the disposal on the EPFIGMS/CPGRAMS portal, the member should also be informed by email/phone or by speed post where ever grievances have been received in offline mode and where email/phone number is not mentioned.

9. After disposal of each grievance, it is imperative that the feedback of the member/complainant is obtained. The same should be examined to analyse whether individual or systemic lapses have taken place in the entire process of grievance redressal so that corrective measures are taken to ensure that such lapses are not repeated in future.

10. Although online redressal systems viz. CPGRAMS & EPFIGMS have considerably facilitated the grievance redressal machinery in EPFO, these systems can function optimally and effectively only if persons using the same exhibit sincerity of purpose and effectiveness of action. For this, all senior officers have to take active interest in ensuring the quality of disposals for grievances being received in EPFO via different modes.

11. The RPFC-I, RO/Officer-in-charge of SRO should conduct regular and frequent review of the grievance redressal mechanism in their respective offices. ACC (Zones) shall also review the working of the grievance redressal mechanism during their visit to offices under their jurisdiction and incorporate the same in their visit notes.

12. Whereever necessary disciplinary action should be taken against officials found responsible for causing inordinate delay/obstacle in the process of grievance resolution.

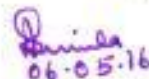

13. The RPFCs in charge of RO/SRO should also ensure that the PRO system in their offices is working properly and effectively during the working hours and under no circumstances it should be left unmanned. The phone calls must be attended in courteous and helpful manner with due diligence.

14. It is once again reiterated that all grievances received in any office of EPFO should invariably be finally resolved to the satisfaction of the concerned member/complainant within stipulated time limit of 30 days.

15. Besides above, you are instructed to pay special attention to the immediate redressal of grievances related to new IT enabled initiatives taken for improving customer service such as allotment/activation of UAN, online transfer of members accumulations, online PF balance, online claim status etc, if required in consultation with IS Division of Head Office.

16. It may also be noted that instructions have been issued vide Circular No.CSD-I/Misc./2016/41514 dated 07.03.2016 (Sr. No. 733 of Circulars on EPF website) regarding forwarding of details of disposed off grievances on CPGRAMS which is required for PRAGATI – eSamiksha review taken by the Hon'ble Prime Minister every month with Secretary, Ministry of Labour & Employment. The Zonal ACCs are requested to ensure that a monthly report containing twenty such disposed off grievances related to the offices under their jurisdiction should invariably reach Head Office to acc.csd@epfindia.gov.in and rc.csd@epfindia.gov.in latest by 27th day of the month for review, compilation and onward transmission to Ministry of Labour.

Yours faithfully,
